
Decent Work

Decent work sums up the aspirations of human beings at work. It brings together access to productive and adequately paid work, safety at work and social protection for families, better prospects for personal development and social inclusion, and freedom for individuals to express their demands.

The ILO : International Labour Organisation

The international Labour Organisation was created under the Versailles treaty to ensure social justice for worker. This agency is nicknamed the Labour Authority and is based in Geneva, Switzerland.

Therefore, the decent work agenda has four strategics objectives ;

- Promote access to decent jobs.
- Developing social protection
- Strengthening tripartitism and social dialogue
- Ensuring fundamental principles and rights at work

- Disparities in working conditions

Despite all the laws adopted in the world 200 million people are out of work, and many more have a job but live in poverty. Hundreds of millions do not enjoy the fundamental rights of work. So, men are born equal in rights ? I do not think

What the washers ask for

Security

The respects for the rights

a suitable age

a paid employment

Ensure proper nutrition for family and good health

A gender equality

AN example

However, we are not obliged to go to Africa or India to rediscover these injustices. We can take the example of Huelva, a quotation in the south of Spain.

There is a large population of migrants from all over the world who live in deplorable conditions in the face of agriculture. In other words, they are paid, mistreated, unprotected and working conditions are extreme because they work with dangerous products. For this reason they become seriously ill and live without hygiene, where are the labor rights ?

I think this situation is revolting because the patrons take advantage of the situation of the poorest.

I think the first objective is to preserve world peace

